Yes	Yes	It has been great as a parent to hear my children (I had an older son at the Gilberd as well) talk so confidently and knowledgeably about consent, bullying vs banter, body image and a range of other topics. I have been really impressed with the way that they have been taught this and their capacity to discuss what we would never have talked about when my husband and I were at school. Thank you very much.	No		No

			I don't think FGM and detail such as that should be covered in year 7, but graphic for that age group. Should perhaps be year 9. I also don't recall my son mentioning any lessons in money, interest etc in year 7. We will of course teach him about money management but this is a good idea to include for those

Yes	No	No		Yes	I attended a parent's session by the 2 Johns (eSafety Training) yesterday, and they mentioned the rise in self harm and suicide in boys due to indecent image capture and blackmail; and the rise in both girls and boys of the "trad wife" ideal where girls want a rich husband so only need to make themselves pretty rather than study and achieve a career of their own. They also talked about the algorithms used by social media / you tube / tik tok etc which lead to a bias in content shown rather than a balanced viewpoint - not fake news per se, but that what you are seeing online reinforces one viewpoint only so it is important to look at reliable sources when forming an opinion. It would be great if these areas could also be covered at an age before it becomes an issue as well as maybe annual "watch out for this" type sessions on any disturbing trends highlighted by the 2 Johns or other similar organisations.

Yes	We really appreciate the time that is give to allow Tilly to ask questions and have discussions with her form tutor about some of the topics we saw on the Personal Development Programme.

I wonder if there is a place for discussions about certain topics in single sex groups as well as mixed gender groups? I appreciate this raises the issue of those who identify as a different gender of those who identify as a different gender or none at all. Yes No

Yes	Yes	I am happy with the policy and glad my child is being educated in this way following this approach	Yes	I think it looks thorough and appropriate and thank you for sharing this and ensuring my child has this vital education at school to back up what is being taught at home.	Yes	I do wonder if looking at body image ought to come sooner in the timeline given that I have seen examples of negative body image happening nearer year 8 than year 11 and would it not be better to tackle it before it becomes a more deep rooted issue?

No Yes	No No		Yes No	Great coverage of topics, but would help to give pupils more practical advice and not only information. LGBTQ+ information would be best earlier, start of year 7, as many people start exploring their gender and sexual identity at about year 6.	No No

Yes	Yes	This is a well-written policy; thank you for sharing it. The most important aspect for me is for the information to delivered at an age-appropriate level. Some of these children will only turn 12 next summer and they still believe in Santa Clause, so sensitivity and awareness of their young age is key. I agree that they need to learn about relationships etc, but it all depends on how the material is conveyed to them.	No		No
